WESTERN MARYLAND WILL ASK COUNCIL FOR RIGHT OF WAY.

Will Bring Matter Up in Meeting Tomorrow Night and Present Its Map.

SOME ALLEYS TO BE VACATED

Company Will Seek Right of Way Through All the Properties They Have Purchased and Across Intersecting Streets.

The Connellsville & State Line railroad, the Pennsylvania corporation of the Western Maryland railroad, will ask Council tomorrow night for a right of way through Connellsville borough. Representatives of the company will appear before Council armed with maps showing the territory through which their road is to pass. These representatives will ask for the vacation of certain alleys and public thoroughfares on the West Side. Steps will be taken it is said, to have a meeting of the Railroad Committee to consider the proposition before it gets into Council.

The railroad officials were not ready today to make known their plans regarding the proposed route through Connellsville. Their maps show the property that has been acquired through purchase and they will ask the vacation of the streets and alleys within that area. Exceptions will be made for certain intersecting streets, but these will be reduced to a minimum and be as few as Council will stand for.

One of the alley vacations to be asked is that one running north and south between Seventh and Eighth streets. It is commonly supposed that the railroad will enter town about on a line with this alley.

Division Engineer J. I. Palmer of the Connellsville & State Line railroad said today the maps were prepared in Baltimore and sent to the representatives of the company's real estate interests here. They did not pass through the Division Engineer's office.

MAIL BOXES.

They Have Been Placed in the Office Buildings of Town.

Mail boxes are being placed in the office buildings of town for the convenience of tenants therein. The collections from them will be the same as from other boxes in the down town district.

There will be six collections during the day, three on holidays and one on Sunday. The boxes will be a great convenience.

MRS. O'HARA SELLS BALTIMORE HOUSE.

Martin O'Hara Pays $16,000 for 10 Year Lease on Old Hotel.

HAS MANAGED IT FOR YEARS

When Application for License is Made It Will Be in Name of Present Owner's Brother-in-Law—One of Town's Oldest Hotels.

Mrs. Mary O'Hara will retire from the hotel business when the new licenses are handed down, having leased the Baltimore House to her brother-in-law, Martin O'Hara, who paid $16,000 for a 10 year lease on the property. The new proprietor will apply for the license Mrs. O'Hara now has.

The Baltimore House is one of the oldest hotels in town. It is admirably located at the corner of Water and Peach streets, the hotel nearest the Baltimore & Ohio depot. For the past nine years Martin O'Hara has been the manager of the hotel for the widow of Thomas O'Hara, the former owner.

The Baltimore House was built nearly 10 years ago by David Welch. Former proprietors numbered George Long, S. E. Frock and James M. Marietta. Thomas O'Hara took over the property a number of years ago and for the past nine years Mrs. Mary O'Hara has been the proprietor. The active management of the hotel devolved upon Martin O'Hara and was decidedly successful. Mrs. O'Hara having decided to retire, sold out to her brother-in-law, who is to be the new proprietor.

Pop Corn Stand Changes Hands

Misses Mollie and Myra Fisher have sold their pop corn and taffy store to Miss Catherine Brown of Mt. Pleasant, and on Monday, February 20, Miss Estelle Reed and an assistant, will take charge of the stand and conduct the business.

The Misses Fisher are considered expert pop corn and taffy makers. They have been in the business for the past eight years, having for five years conducted the local store of Bromeier's. For the past three years they have been in business for themselves and for the past year and a half they have been located on North Pittsburg street. They have worked up an excellent trade and have many friends who will regret to learn of their disposal of the business. Miss Reed, who takes charge is a well known young woman of town and will no doubt made a successful successor to the Misses Fisher.

THE HOSE HOUSE A HEN HOUSE NOW.

Second Ward Fire Property Out in the Township.

A HOT TIP HANDED OUT

By Daily News Man Who For Once Recognized a Good Story, But It Was Not Available In His Own Office—Can Tell It to Council.

Hose House Bill will probably not be present in Council tomorrow night at the regular session of that body, but the Bill will be up for debate nevertheless. Councilmen Friel and Brennan are interested in this matter and are anxious to secure more information on the subject. Clerk A. O. Bixler was directed at the last meeting to request the presence of William Dempsey McGinnis to come before Council and explain the absence of the old hose house from its accustomed place in the Second Ward.

There has been considerable mystery about the whereabouts of the hose house. Reports are to effect that Nick Trump hauled it away. Nick don't deny this, but then Nick is in the hauling business. He is busy hauling all the time and if he gets paid for it Nick would haul a hose house away just as quickly as he would a piano. Nick's time is too valuable for him to require a deed or affidavit of ownership before he moves things. So while Nick hauled the borough's hose house off its foundation no suspicions attaches to his end of the transaction. If Council subpoenas Nick, though, it is quite likely he will freely tell them where the missing hose house is; only Nick wants it understood he is not in the second hand lumber business.

A staff correspondent of The Daily News gave a Courier man a tip on a scoop the other day, a scoop not available in The Daily News office, on the present whereabouts of the much sought hose house. Said staff correspondent is long on the happenings of Bullskin and Connellsville townships. He notes a new chicken coop, a new coat of paint or anything new in that bailiwick as quickly as some fellows do the absence of their names in print every day. And he noted a new chicken coop about the time the Second ward hose house flitted. It is on a little farm out in the township and Council, according to the News man, is not far wrong in its conclusion as to how it got there.

If the sage of Poverty Nook refuses to lend his presence in Council tomorrow evening as suggested by a resolution offered at the last meeting by Councilman Frank Friel it is possible the Daily News man will be given an opportunity to tell the members his suspicions that the hose house is a hen house now.

Fight Against Tardiness Wins

In rooms Nos. 1, 1½, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 there was not a single tardy mark registered during the month.

DONEHOO DEPLORES PULPIT VAUDEVILLE.

Former Connellsville Man Fires Broadside at Evangelists.

A LOCAL MINISTER ENDORSES

In Communication to Pittsburg Paper Rev. Donehoo Says Easy Money of Flitting Evangelists Keeps Young Men From the Pulpit.

In this morning's issue of the Pittsburg Gazette Times Dr. George P. Donehoo, formerly of Connellsville and now pastor of the Presbyterian church of Coudersport, Pa., has a communication on "Pulpit Vaudeville" that attracted much attention in local church circles. The comment of Dr. Donehoo was inspired by an editorial on the same subject that appeared in the Gazette Times a few days ago. After reading Dr. Donehoo's remarks this morning a Protestant minister who has accomplished a great work for his congregation during his pastorate here, called up The Courier and requested that Dr. Donehoo's remarks be published in The Courier, stating that the communication hit the nail on the head in as clear and concise a manner as it had ever been his pleasure to read. Dr. Donehoo's communication follows:

"The modern church has to a very great extent been influenced by the spirit of the times, which in almost every department of human effort has become a spirit of sensationalism. The American people have been very largely influenced by the 'continuous performance' idea. The adoption of this vaudeville idea by the church has had a most baneful influence on the popular idea of the church and its mission.

"So great has this fad for the unusual become that in many places the regular work of the church cannot be carried on without a series of so-called 'evangelistic services.' The denomination to which I belong has been so influenced by this spirit of unusual services that the regular pastorate has lost nearly all of its real power and influence, and the services of the evangelist have taken its place. Notwithstanding all of the seeming success of this movement, in many places, its general and permanent influence on the church as an organization is not a success. The quiet, regular, self-denying work of the pastor sinks into insignificance when compared with the self-evident results of the work of the evangelist, which is performed with a blare of trumpets, heralding every convert made and listed. I know that it is unpopular to make such statements, but they are none the less true. I know pastors who have quietly and with real self-denial been visiting the sick and distressed, comforting the dying and educating the children of the church to lives of Christian usefulness for generations, whose glorious heroism has sunken into nothingness when compared with the gaudy blare of some "evangelistic movements," which never could have been possible without their work of self-denial for a lifetime.

"Every denomination today, and mine in particular, is lamenting the fact that more men are not attracted to the settled pastorate. Why should a man spend the greater part of his early life in training himself for a work which, according to the 'evangelist,' he does not do as well as the man who roams over the field from Maine to California? Why should the minister remain in charge of a church to do the self-denying work of the pastorate, in visiting the sick, comforting the dying, taking part in all of the benevolent and humane movements in his parish, for which he will receive less actual remuneration for his year's work than the 'evangelist' will receive in three or four weeks?

"It is time for the church to awaken to a realization of the fact that in the church, as in nature, the silent, quiet forces are the ones which count. The quiet, self denying pastor, who is training the children of his flock to Christian living, who is ministering to the wants of the sick and sorrowing, who is bearing the criticism of the world in the spirit of his Master, may not be making as much noise in his work as some comet which flashes over the ecclesiastical heavens for a week or two and then sinks below the horizon, but he is doing the real work of the Master whom he serves."

CAUSE NOT KNOWN.

Stickle Store, However, May Have Been Burned by Incendiary.

As yet it is not known definitely how the fire which destroyed the store of A. Stickel & Company at Rogers Mill, originated. The supposition is that the fire was of an incendiary origin. A short time after the fire broke out the report of an explosion in front of the building was heard.

This cannot be accounted for as there were no explosives in the vicinity of the fire.

Acid Plant Burns.

PORT RICHMOND, Cal., Feb. 8.—(Special.)—The big sulphuric acid plant of the Standard Oil Company here was destroyed by fire today, with a loss of half a million dollars. The fire was due to an explosion in an acid tank, which scattered the blazing acid to all parts of the plant. Three men were badly burned.

The Girls Will Play Basket Ball As Preliminary for the Cokers.

The High School girls have been engaged to play a preliminary game at the West Side Auditorium Friday night. That is the evening the South Side meets the Cokers. The arrangement was perfected this morning by Manager H. L. March of the Coker team. The Connellonians and Philos will meet in the cage.

The arrangement met with the consent of Superintendent Deffenbaugh and Principal Cobaugh on condition that the girls participating should secure parental consent. Since the girls have been playing in public for some weeks there was no serious objection at home.

It is generally admitted that the floor at the West Side hall is better suited for the girls' game. It is smaller than the Armory and affords a far better footing. That some of the feminine players have not been seriously injured because of the insecure footing at the Armory is to be wondered at.

ALL EL PASO TAKING HOLIDAY.

Opera Bouffe Warfare Around Juarez Affording Amusement for All.

THE CITY AWAITS ATTACK

Defenders Well Rehearsed for "Defense" and Subsequent Surrender But Attackers Lag—Mexican Town Gets Off Sporting Page at Last.

United Press Telegram.

EL PASO, Texas, Feb. 8.—El Paso today is taking a holiday. Stores and offices are closed and business practically at a standstill. Business men, clerks and practically every male inhabitant of the city who could possibly escape working made a concerted rush for the Rio Grande to secure some point of vantage to witness the "attack" on Juarez.

It was fully expected the combined Insurgent forces of Generals Orozco, Blanco, Delgado and Alcalis would move on the city which is now very much on the map. It used to be Juarez only got its name on the sporting page, but since the unpleasantness," which isn't a bit unpleasant for the El Paso natives, Juarez is sure of a first page position, and a "top" head.

Up to this afternoon the expected attack had not materialized. The El Paso spectators watched the proceedings with interest. From the high buildings of the city, where hundreds upon hundreds have swarmed, armed with field glasses, telescopes, opera glasses or no glasses at all, can view the movements of the revolutionary "enemy."

At closer range the preparations for the defense of the city can be observed. The opera bouffe warfare of the Central and South American republicans doesn't have a thing on the impending conquest of Juarez. Juarez is waiting to be conquered, the defenders are thoroughly rehearsed in the motions for the defense and subsequent surrender. All that is wanting is the attacking army of many generals. After a siesta the "attack" may begin.

United Press Telegram.

ALBANY, N. Y. Feb. 8.—An unsuccessful effort to end the Senatorial deadlock in this state was made by the Democrats today. A conference of the majority of the members was held behind closed doors and lasted nearly three hours. When it adjourned it was said that no agreement had been reached.

The conference, however, was adjourned subject to a call of the chair and the effort to reach a compromise will be continued.

VANDERBILT GRANGE STIRS THINGS UP.

Held Enthusiastic Meeting Yesterday and Will Get New Material.

AFTER WOMEN FOR MEMBERS

If They Can Be Interested the Grange Will Be the Largest in Fayette County by Long Odds—Interesting Topics Discussed.

Vanderbilt Grange No. 1022, the strongest of the five in Fayette county, held one of the best attended and most interesting meetings of late in Newmyer's hall at Vanderbilt yesterday. There are 60 members of the Vanderbilt Grange and a campaign was launched to increase this to at least 100. The idea is to get the women interested for while other granges have a good percentage of women members, there are none at all in No. 1022. In the State Grange meetings and other affairs of the organization the women have played a prominent part and many of them are as wise to the farming industry as the male members. There is rapidly increasing interest in Grange affairs, stimulated largely by the activity of the State in behalf of the farmers.

Ewing Galley was the master at yesterday's meeting, Mr. Johnson was secretary and Thomas Blackstone the literary manager. Mr. Blackstone opened the discussion of "What Are the Farmers Going to Do for the Plowman." He made an address of some length, dwelling on the necessity to keep the farmer boy on the farm and away from the city.

At the conclusion of the address there was a discussion participated in by Aaron Fairchild, William Collins, Fred Leghty, Josiah Freed, Johnson Cramer and others.

At the meeting of the first Tuesday in March the topic will be "Does It Benefit the Land by Plowing Under Green Crops and, If So, How?"

The idea of the grange is to bring the farmers closer together to work for their mutual interests, especially in the purchasing of implements, securing reasonable insurance and other matters.

No Trace Yet of Missing Ashurst

United Press Telegram.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 8.—Having failed to find any trace of the body of Richard L. Ashurst, the aged Postmaster of Philadelphia, under the Million Dollar pier, or in the surf, the local authorities today set men dragging the channel.

Most of the local officials here are firmly convinced that Ashurst was drowned, although this view is not concurred in by the Federal authorities who have investigated the case.

Mayor Gill Recalled.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 8.—(Special.)—Mayor H. Gill today admitted that he had been recalled at yesterday's election, and there was no doubt it was due to woman suffrage. George Dilling, president of the Citizen's Welfare League, was chosen Mayor by a plurality of about 1,000.

FORTY MINUTE COURT SESSION.

Again There Was Nothing Doing for the Jurors This Morning.

ONE CASE CALLED FOR TRIAL

The Others Are Either Settled or Continued and the Civil List is Fast Being Cleared Up—Brewery Company Defendant.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, Feb. 8.—The sight of the jury or even the thought that the body of 12 men were ready to pass upon their case again showed its effect this morning and only settlements were effected in the large court room.

This court came the nearest to trying a case, however, since last Thursday. Since that day not one case has gone to the jury. One case was opened today but a settlement was effected almost immediately.

Court was in session from 9 o'clock to 10.40 when a recess was taken until 1.30 this afternoon. Judge R. E. Umbel presided in the large court room.

Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen was on the bench in the small court room where the case of Nick Coppozzoli against the Johnson Brewing Company was taken up at 10.15. This action, a suit for the recovery of $336 back wages, was continued from Tuesday's list.

The laying of the cement sidewalk on Main street, Masontown, in front of the William F. Harvey property was the cause of one of the cases called for trial today. Masontown borough is the plaintiff, seeking to recover $188.96 as the cost of putting down the walks, the work having been done at the order of Town Council.

This case was for trial at the September session of civil court but a motion on the part of the defendant, by his attorney, John M. Core, to have the proceedings quashed resulted in only holding the case over. The fact that the writ was not drawn up according to the form prescribed by the Act of Assembly was the basis of the motion, but it was sustained only as far as quashing the writ. An order followed directing that an alias writ be issued.

After the jury had been called about 10.30 and the case was opened a settlement was reached within a few minutes Attorneys Rhodes and Herrzog for the plaintiff, agreed with the defense that if the cost of the work was paid, $171, the case would be withdrawn. The jury was discharged.

Masontown borough claimed an additional ten per cent for laying the pavement. In his affidavit of defense Harvey stated that his property had been damaged to the extent of $709 by the work of the borough but he agreed today to drop the matter.

The ninth case on today's list was that of C. H. Kerr against the Portable Safety Light Company, an appeal from the justice's decision against the defendants in his suit to recover back wages. A settlement was made on January 28, Kerr receiving the amount claimed due, $51.84.

A motion for continuance was granted in the action of the Reinke Wilson Company against the Summit Hotel Company, with George Bailey, Jasper Augustine, George Porter and Mrs. Frances P. Yeager as garnishees. This is an attachment on an execution on property in the hands of the garnishee.

A rather peculiar case on today's list is that of Christopher C. Garletts, administrator of the estate of Mrs. T. Bitch, late of Brownsville, against Dr. L. N. Reichard. It is another action of assumpsit, $339.18 being the amount involved.

Mrs. Bitch died at Brownsville on March 15, 1910. Letters of administration were granted the plaintiff. During her lifetime the deceased deposited money in the National Depoit Bank of Brownsville. As a matter of convenience she had the account entered under her name and that L. N. Reichard, her physician. Interest and principal amounted to $339.18 at the time of her death.

Plaintiff avers that on May 23, 1910, without any authority or right, Dr. Reichard drew the total account from the bank, and has refused to turn it over to the estate. The defendant claims the money was given to him and that he is the rightful owner.

The Citizens Title & Trust Company of Uniontown and the Maryland, Pennsylvania & West Virginia Telephone and Telegraph Company are the parties involved in an action of assumpsit to have been tried today, but held up pending action on a rule issued January 9, 1911, on the defendant to show cause why judgment should not be taken for want of sufficient affidavit of defense.

A promissory note dated at Uniontown, November 8, 1905, for $5,000 is the basis of the suit. It was signed by the company, per R. E. Umbel, pres-

Passes Exams; Dies From Joy

United Press Telegram.

ORANGE, N. J., Feb. 8.—Although cerebral hemorrhage was given as the cause of the death today of Maurice Henkle, a school boy, the indirect cause was his excessive joy at learning he had passed an examination.

First informed that he had failed, young Henkle went home greatly depressed. He became ill from grief. Later it was found that a mistake had been made in grading his papers and that he had passed. The superintendent immediately notified the boy, who rushed to the school house in an outburst of elation. When a few feet from the school door, he toppled over. He was rushed to the hospital, but died shortly before noon.

Morton Will Contest Ends

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, Feb. 8.—The Morton will case was settled this morning after three years' litigation in the Fayette county courts. Attorney R. W. Playford, counsel for Mrs. Jennie Thompson, announced he terms of settlement.

A. B. Morton, husband of Mrs. Amanda Morton, who left two wills at the time of her death several years ago, has agreed to purchase the disputed property left to Mrs. Thompson, the building and lot occupied by Dr. J. D. Jackson and the Adams Express Company, Pittsburg street, Connellsville, or $20,000, $16,000 to be paid in cash and the balance being represented by a lot in the Morton addition.

At the time of Mrs. Morton's death Mrs. Thompson made her home at the Morton residence. She had nursed Mrs. Morton for a long while. The dispute was over two wills and a codicil left by Mrs. Morton. The first will was a joint agreement for the disposal of the Morton property. The second will bequeathed the North Pittsburg street property to Mrs. Thompson. A codicil revoked this. Mrs. Thompson charged that undue influence had been used to secure a revocation of the codicil.

TWO COKE MAKERS HEAD THE BOARD.

They Are Chairman and President of Scottdale's Trade Organization.

MANY MEMBERS ENROLLED

A Big Meeting Will Be Held in the Reid Hall on Next Tuesday Evening When Further Plans Will Be Considered.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, Feb. 8.—Two prominent coke manufacturers are the temporary officers of the Board of Trade which is in process of formation in Scottdale with between 90 and 100 members already enrolled in the few days that the plan has been under way.

President John P. Brenen of the Thompson-Connellsville Coke Company, is temporary chairman of the Board and W. L. Kelly, secretary of the Marietta-Connellsville Coke Company, is the temporary secretary. Both men are giving their best attention to the plan. Mr. Brennen was only willing to accept the place of temporary chairman as his duties keep him too much occupied with his company. Mr. Kelly has been for years one of Scottdale's most progressive men.

The next meeting of the organization will be in the Reid hall, over the Broadway National bank, next Tuesday evening. It had been intended to have the meeting on Friday evening but the Y. M. C. A. entertainment being on that evening caused the change of plans.

The membership committee is composed of H. R. Parker, of J. S. Parker Company, C. A. Colborn, a shoe merchant, W. F. Stauffer, the banker and capitalist, I. Marks, of Marks & Goldenson, and W. L. Kelly, the real estate dealer and coke manufacturer. The dues are $5.00 a year and in the last three days nearly 100 members have been solicited and enrolled. Everyone in town is eligible and invited to join.

The aim of the organization is the encouragement, development and protection of trade, manufacturing, commercial, civic and business interests of Scottdale and its vicinity, and the promotion, fostering and advancing of every legitimate enterprise for the growth, prosperity and good government of the community, together with the cultivation of agreeable business and social relations among those who may become members.

Two Deaths in Bennett Family

Since last Monday morning the home of Mrs. David Bennet and family on Tenth street has been saddened by the death of two members of the family. On Monday morning at 8.30 o'clock Miss Isabella Bennet, a daughter, died after an illness of several months and yesterday afternoon, John Bennet, aged 16 years and 3 months, the youngest of the family, was called away by the Grim Reaper. He had been unconscious for the past several days and was not aware of the death of his sister.

At the age of 10 years he fell and sustained an injury to his spine. Since that time he had been in delicate health and his death resulted from the injury. Mrs. Bennett, the mother, is confined to her bed and is prostrated over the death of her loved ones. Last July, Mr. Bennett, the father, died.

John Bennet was born in Fayette county and was living in Connellsville at the time he met with the accident which resulted in his death. He had a wide circle of young friends who keenly feel his untimely death. In addition to his mother he is survived by the following brothers, David, of Tower Hill, William, James, Duncan and Alex and one sister, Miss Elizabeth Bennet, at home. The funeral of Miss Isabelle Bennett, which was to have been held this afternoon from her late home has been postponed until tomorrow afternoon at 1.30 o'clock when a double funeral will be held. ELOSSER-TWIGG SENSATION DUE.

The Two Bodies Have Been Exhumed and Matter Secured for Analysis.

CRISIS IS EXPECTED SOON

Rumors About Prosecuting Attorney's Office That An Arrest or Arrests Will Be Made in the Cumberland Mystery.

United Press Telegram.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Feb. 8.—A sensation was sprung in the Twigg-Elosser poison mystery today when in a signed statement State's Attorney Robb said that the bodies of Grace Elosser and Charles L. Twigg had been secretly exhumed. The body of the girl was disinterred in the Cumberland cemetery Sunday night and that of Twigg was taken from the grave in Keyser, W. Va., last night, according to the statement.

Drs. Koon and Foard, Health Officer Francis Harrington and Undertaker George Frey, who performed the first autopsy, had charge of the disinterment. Matter from both bodies was sent to the John Hopkins hospital at Baltimore and to Philadelphia where an examination that will be exhaustive was begun today to determine the correctness of the original theories that the deaths were caused by cyanide poisoning.

Until today's statement of Prosecutor Robb, the exhumation story had been denied. The crisis in the investigation is believed near and it was hinted about the State's Attorney's office that an arrest or arrests are impending.

THE "GOOD PROVIDER."

His Duty to His Family Doesn't End With His Death.

Many a man who has the reputation of being a "good provider" for his family forgets that a man's duty to his family doesn't end with his death. He should put something aside for the support of his dear ones in case anything happens to him. A Savings Account is often the salvation of a family in the time of trouble and it's the plain duty of every married man to have such an account in a good bank. GREGGERSON TALKS ABOUT SOCIALISM.

He Addressed Fair Sized Audience at the Old Casino Last Night.

PASSED UP THE SCHOOL GRAFT

Only Reference to School Boards and Councils Was to Say They Possess More Brains Than Can Be Found in Harrisburg Legislature.

Though it was announced that he would deliver a lecture on "Graft in the Public Schools," J. C. Greggerson of McKeesport, spoke last evening in the Casino theatre on most anything but that subject.

The West Side band was engaged for the occasion, and a fairly good sized audience was attracted. "The Good Side of Socialists and the Bad Side of Every Other Party" would have made an excellent title for Greggerson's speech.

That he is an excellent talker and well acquainted with methods of working on the sympathies of his audience was plain. His address was interesting to those present.

He recited several stories of incidents that had occurred in McKeesport in the ward where he resided, during the recent shut-down of the mills at that place. At one time he said there were 27 families in a destitute condition, which meant 27 husband, 27 wives and upwards of a hundred children in misery, want and privation, "lacking the necessities of life not because they didn't want to earn their living, but because they did not have the chance."

"At the same time, in the same place, there were 300 families in the same condition," he added.

Speaking of "bums and tramps," Greggerson informed his listeners that 50 or 60 years ago there were no such words, while in the two or three generations since that time the number of this class has grown to over 2,000,000. He spent considerable time in an effort to impress the audience that "you have not learned to protect yourself until you learn to protect me today, for you may need me to protect you tomorrow."

"It is no longer each man for himself," the speaker said. "It is each for all and all for each and until we get that social concert our destinies will be beyond the safe road."

Greggerson "went" for the tramps and paupers, branding them as lowdown, despisable wretches. He said, "the spirit I admire is the one that says, 'I will,' and looks at conditions as they are. When you can't get along in Connellsville, you can't get along anywhere. Your industry depends on the other industries."

Some time was taken up with an attempt to explain the difference between private and public ownership, but for each example he asked the audience to name the reasons why conditions should be such. Greggerson did not state any reason himself. "To revolutionize the industries of the United States," was his slogan. "We just want to turn things around, both politically and industrially," the speaker said,

Speaking of what he termed "a hold-up game," referring to the street car companies, etc., Greggerson attacked the newspapers, calling them the "authorized liars" of the community. "There is practically no paper in this country that is free today; no paper that dares come out and tell the truth," he added.

A week or so ago, Greggerson paid a visit to Harrisburg and dropped into the Capitol. "Honest to goodness," he said, "this comes from the heart. If this audience didn't look more intelligent than that bunch of law-makers, I wouldn't stay with you 15 minutes." The speaker concluded this attack on the Legislature by calling the members of the House "molly-coddles, pin heads, nothings, mutts, things and washed out and left-over remnants of what might have been something," all of which seemed to amuse the audience greatly.

In concluding Greggorson made mention of School Boards and Councils in this manner, "I never saw a School Board or City Council where I couldn't find more brains to the square inch than I could to the square mile in Harrisburg." This was as close as he got to the subject he was scheduled to speak on.

Quite a number of ladies were present at the meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the trustees of the United Presbyterian church was held last evening at J. A. Mason's office in the Second National Bank building. Business of a routine nature was transacted.

Viola Allen at Soisson Tonight

Miss Viola Allen and an all star supporting company appear at the Soisson tonight in "The White Sister," admitted to be one of the best plays in which Miss Allen has yet been cast. The other members of the company include James O'Neill, for years one of the leading actors on the stage and who up to the present engagement had headed his own companies.

"The White Sister" is one of F. Marion Crawford's best novels. The scenes are laid in Italy, the home of Crawford's best works. The story revolves around the return of a soldier-lover supposed to have been killed in battle, and a Catholic nun.

The advance sale of seats indicates the audience tonight will be one of the largest of the season. This is one of the best attractions Manager Fred Robbins has offered the public here.

Senate For 'Frisco.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—(Special.) The Senate Committee on Industrial Expositions by an unanimous vote today decided to report for adoption by the Senate the bill providing that the Panama Exposition be held in San Francisco.

Why Spiders Fight.

When two spiders fight there is generally a good reason for the attack and the vigorous defense that follows. It is not generally known tant after a certain time spiders become incapable of spinning a web from lack of material. The glutinous excretion from which the slender threads are spun is limited; therefore spiders cannot keep on constructing new snares when the old ones are destroyed. But they can avail themselves of the web producing powers of their younger neighbors, and this they do without scruple. As soon as a spider's web constructing material has become exhausted and its last web destroyed it sets out in search of another home, and unless it should chance to find one that is tenantless a battle usually ensues, which ends only with the retreat or death of the invader or defender.

A Pretty Compliment.

His incessant work, his avoidance of all rest and recreation and his rigorous self denial made Joseph Pulitzer in his days in harness the despair of his family.

In this connection a pretty story is told about the famous journalist's son Ralph. Mr. Pulitzer had refused to take a holiday, and Mrs. Pulitzer exclaimed:

"Did you ever know your father to do anything because it was pleasant?"

"Yes, once—when he married you," the young man gracefully replied.—Washington Post.

FORTY MINUTE COURT SESSION.

ident, and John M. Core, secretary.

Defendant averred that the debt to recover which the action was brought was assumed by R. E. Umbel and J. M. Core, but did not claim that the plaintiff ever released the defendants from its obligation to pay the note.

Two suits were entered today against William Bates, one of the subcontractors on the Western Maryland, Rosario Visconti and Nick Soldano asking $2,893.30 for leveling and grading and Visconti, Soldano and Frank D'Auria suing for $6,130.92 for third class masonary work performed.

Max Mayer and Carl Eggebricht today entered suit against Sarah Levy of Connellsville to recover $111 on a bill of goods ordered and delivered.

Mary Wantz filed a libel in devorce from Hugo Wantz on the grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment. They were married in 1894 and since 1908 Hugo has treated his wife so badly, she claims, she is unable to support herself.

Applications for licenses were filed by Mary O'Hara for the Baltimore House, Connellsville, and the Johnson Brewing Company for a brewery at New Salem.

The will of Eliza Bungard, late of Saltlick township, was probated today. The estate is valued at $400 and is to be divided among the lawful heirs. Henry C. Bungard is named executor.

The suit of the Keystone Planing Mill Company against Mrs. Clara Pritchard, both of Connellsville, is to recover $117.29 on a book account for lumber, cement and other materials furnished, together with labor.

At the justice's hearing before Squire W. P. Clark on June 18, 1910, Mrs. Pritchard denied that she had ever ordered the plaintiff to do the work and that it was done on her house. After examining the house in question, Squire Clark rendered his decision in favor of the plaintiff. An appeal was taken.

In filing her affidavit of defense, Mrs. Pritchard admitted that she was indebted to the plaintiff, but only in the sum of $1.50. A settlement will likely be reached this afternoon before the case goes to a jury.

The assumpsit of the Yough Iron & Metal Company of Connellsville, against H. C. Frick, A. W. Miller and Richard B. Mellon, late partners doing business under the firm name of A. Overholt & Company, was settled on January 28. The suit resulted from the sale of an old building. Part of an old engine was removed which the plaintiff claimed was their property.

A compromise was reached for about $175. Attorney S. R. Goldsmith represented the plaintiff.

The trespass case of August Jennert against Keener Stewart, for trial today, was continued. A case that will probably be taken up this afternoon is that of Mary Hawkis against Frank Good, a capias.

The Mothers' Circle and Husbands Meet

The members of the Mothers' Circle and their husbands held a delightful meeting last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ward on East Green street. Mrs. Ward is a member of the Circle, but owing to the illness of her husband she has been unable to attend the meetings. The affair last evening was a complete surprise to Mr. Ward, who gladly welcomed his many friends.

The evening was pleasantly spent at various games. Several musical selections were also rendered during the evening. Later a dainty luncheon was served from baskets brought by the guests. Thirty-four guests were present.

Suit in Replevin by Furnace Co.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, Feb. 8.—Suit in replevin was filed late yesterday by the Dunbar Furnace Company, through Walter C. Harris, receiver, against the Pennsylvania railroad to recover six cars of pig iron now in the possession of the railroad company and consigned to the Cleveland Cliffs Iron Company. There are 122 tons of No. 1 foundry, 29 tons of No. 2 foundry and 30 tons of gray forge iron. The value of the iron is $3,234.

This is a test case and on the outcome hinges the disposition of hundreds of tons of iron sold by the Dunbar Furnace Company. The creditors of the company will attempt to recover this iron from the purchasers if the court sustains the suit against the Pennsylvania railroad, and the Cleveland Cliffs Iron Company, which is made joint defendant.

Little Child is Fatally Burned

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Worae was fatally burned yesterday morning when its clothing caught fire while playing before an open fire. The mother was also painfully burned attempting to extinguish the flames.

The mother went out to feed the chickens, leaving the boy and a little girl playing in he house. The child's clothing caught fire and screams warned a neighbor. The neighbor, in turn, told Mrs. Worae, who rushed into the room to find the child in flames. The parties live at Martin works.

Rebekah Officials at Local Meeting

Mrs. Agnes Dyer, president of the Rebekah Assembly of Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Mary Walton, president deputy of the Rebekahs, of Allegheny county, were present at the regular meeting of the Daughters of Rebekah held last evening in Odd Fellows hall. Both gave addresses. Mrs. Dyer gave instructions in the new ritual recently adopted and at the close complimented the local Rebekahs on the excellent manner in which they had been carrying out the work of the order. Following the business meeting a social hour was held and refreshments were served. The attendance was larger than it has been for some time.

This afternoon Mrs. Dyer and Mrs. Walton will go to Uniontown and this evening will address the Uniontown Rebekahs ad tomorrow evening they will visit the Smithfield lodge.

Taxing Foreigners.
(Washington Observer.)

A bill has been introduced into the House at Harrisburg providing that all foreign born residents who are unnaturalized shall be subject to payment of all taxes assessed by virtue of the authority of the commonwealth or of any county, city, borough, township, or school district, in the same manner as citizens are taxed, except that the poll tax shall not be assessed.

It is proposed that unnaturalized foreign born persons, living in the state for one year, are to be considered as residents. It has been suggested that the industrial corporations employing unnaturalized foreigners should be required to retain the amount of the taxes from their wages.

If such a provision is to be inserted in this bill there seems to be no good reason why it should not apply to all employes whether American born or foreign born. It is known that thousands of American born citizens in every community refuse to pay taxes of any kind.

Any one who takes the trouble to look at the exoneration list in the county commissioner's office will be surprised at the number of dilinquents in Washington county. In Washington borough alone over 2,000 names appear upon the exoneration list.

If the bill which has been introduced should be enacted into law it would bring many thousands of dollars into the public treasury for county, school, borough and road funds. But it would bring much more if its provisions were such as to secure an effective enforcement of the tax laws applying to American born citizens.

The Tariff Commission.
(Johnstown Tribune.)

Unless Democratic members of the Senate exercise their absurd rights of filibuster, the Tariff Commission bill proposed by President Taft will become a law. While extreme Protectionists dislike the measure, regarding it as a concession to the enemy, it is an evidence of their reasonable views that a practically unanimous Republican vote will be cast in its favor.

The passage of the bill in the House was marked by the first defeat for Democratic Leader and Speaker-to-Be Champ Clark. He signally failed to control his following and the incident forecasts the demonstration of incapacity which will be the chief characteristic of the majority in the new House.

State Police Record.
(Charleroi Mail.)

For those who do not know of the work the State Constables have been doing, we give the following figures from Governor Stuart's last message:

During the year 1909 and up to December 1, 1910, the State police arrested 929 persons, not for petty offenses but for serious crimes, including sixty-three for murder, sixty-seven for attempts to kill, forty for rape, forty for arson, 1?8 for burglary, ninety-six for robbery, 13? for carrying concealed deadly weapons, 150 for unlawful possession of firearms and 188 for violations of the game, fish and forestry laws. Of all those arrested 85 per cent of 818 criminals were convicted. During the same period members of the force traveled more than three-quarters of a million miles and visited more than 1,500 municipalities.

Name Country Roads.
(Monessen News.)

An exchange is again agitating the scheme to name all county roads as streets are now named and to number the houses along these roads. The plan is a good one and should be adopted by country roads. At present country roads have no designation except as incidentally falls to them, and it is often difficult for strangers to find their way without making frequent inquiries. Name your roads and let the name appear on each corner. It will then be easy to find any house in the country as it now is in the city where the street and number is given.

DANIEL R. BLOWER MAKES HIS REPORT.

Figures of Operations of Coal and Coke for 1910

IN THE ELEVENTH DISTRICT

Inspector With Headquarters at Scottdale Makes Public Work of the State in Westmoreland and Fayette Counties—Sixty-six Mines Active.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTTDALE, Feb. 8.—Daniel R. Blower, State Mine Inspector for the Eleventh Bituminous district, has in early time completed his annual report to be submitted to the State Department by a month hence.

This is Mr. Blower's second year here and he has charge of 39 mines in Fayette county and 12 in Westmoreland county. The Westmoreland county mines produced 5,720,990 and Fayette county produced 2,246,797 tons, a total output in the Eleventh district of 7,967,787 tons. Of this the Frick company produced over one half, 4,851,437 tons being to their credit while the Washington Coal & Coke Company came next with 1,555,231 tons. None of the remainder of the 21 companies operating reached half a million tons. The mines in the district number 72, with 66 of them active. One new mine, that of the Clare Coke Company, near Mammoth, was added during the year, and one was abandoned, Boyer No. 1 at Udell.

The fatal accidents this year were few comparatively, the safeguards afforded the miners showing fruits. The fatal accidents inside numbered 12, of which seven were caused by fall of roof coal and slate, three by mine car, one by electricity, and one by fall of coal. There were seven fatal accidents outside, six by cars and one by electricity. There were 61 non-fatal accidents inside the mines and five non-fatal accidents outside the mines.

The detailed figures of production furnished to Inspector Blower by the various companies of the district for the year 1910 were as follows:

Proposed New Legislation Affecting Counties of Fayette and Westmoreland.

Special to The Courier.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 8.—Legislation affecting the counties of Westmoreland, Fayette, Cambria, Berks, Lancaster, Montgomery and Schuylkill was introduced by Senator John M. Jamison of Westmoreland yesterday. Counties having a population of more than 150,000 and less than 200,000 are permitted to create sinking funds and depository boards. The members are the county commissioners, controller and treasurer. Another Jamison bill allows the district attorney to appoint six county detectives. The chief is to receive a salary of $1,800 a year and each detective $1,200 annually.

Representative Berkey H. Boyd of Westmoreland presents a bill requiring that burgesses, councilmen and borough solicitors shall be called together this year and every year thereafter by the clerk of courts, into conference on matters pertaining to borough administration.

Attendance at the meetings is to be compulsory, but each person attending is to be paid $2 a day and traveling expenses at the rate of three cents a mile. The sessions are to be at the county seat or other convenient place, and called by newspaper notices.

Senator Jamison of Westmoreland presented a bill providing for the appointment by the District Attorney of counties having a population of more than 150,000 and less than 500,000, of a special detective officer, and assistant officers, not exceeding five in number, and giving unto the said officers powers now conferred upon constables in cases of criminal procedure, defining their duties and fixing their salaries. The special detective is to receive a salary of $1,800, his assistants $100 a month and necessary traveling expenses, which must be approved by the District Attorney, these monies to be paid out of the treasuries of the said counties on the certificate of said District Attorney to the Controller of the county, who shall order warrants drawn and certify them according to law.

Mr. Jamison also introduced a bill giving County Commissioners, Controller and Treasurer, in counties containing not less than 150,000 nor more than 250,000 inhabitants, power to appoint depositories for county funds, said officials to contitute a board, the duties of which are set forth.

A hearing was given last night in hall of the House of Representatives on the bill changing the method of inflicting the death penalty in capital cases from hanging to electrocution, and confining the execution of the sentence to the two State penitentiaries. The bill has been amended so as to provide that an autopsy be held immediately after execution, that the body of the criminal be turned over to the State Anatomical Board unless it is claimed by relatives, and that not more than six representatives of the press witness the execution. The present bill makes no provision for the presence of the press representatives. The measure will be favorably reported to the House later in the week.

BIG RAIL ORDER.

Railroads Break Away From the Economy Plan.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—(Special.)—An order for 63,000 tons of steel rails, involving about $1,760,000, has been placed by the New York, New Haven & Hartford, about half the tonnage going to the Pennsylvania Steel Company. This is the largest contract given since the New York Central ordered 176,000 tons a few weeks ago.

It is being demonstrated almost every day that railroad companies have broken away from their policy of economy in ordering new equipment pending the decisions on the freight rate question.

The Missouri Pacific is figuring on specifications for 75 locomotives, mostly for freight, and a number of smaller railroads, chiefly in the South, have each ordered a few cars and engines.

TIN PRICE GOES UP.

An Advance of $2 a Ton Has Been Announced.

Announcement was made Tuesday by the American Sheet & Tin Plate Company of an advance in tin plate amounting to $2 a ton, the new list being $3.70 a box of 100 pounds, as against $3.60 which has ruled since November, 1909. The advance in tin plate has been expected and breaks a long record for maintaining prices even through the dull period of 1909, because that line of trade was never affected adversely by the depression in other lines of steel.

So soon as the announcement was made the independent tin plate men announced that they would follow the advance of the Steel Corporation. Both interests say the new price is made because of the increased cost of pig tin, which has been steadily advancing for some months. All of the tin mills are running to capacity and are booked far ahead with orders.

ACCUSED OF THEFT.

Kid Dawson In Trouble at Fairmont Over Pool Game.

J. S. and Thornton Livingston and "Kid" Dawson, were arrested at Fairmont last night on the charge of stealing a large sum of money from C. M. Parker of Morgantown. Dawson up to a few week ago was employed in a local pool room. Parker played a game of pool with one of the men for $10 a side and won. The bet was doubled and the game continued with varying success until $120 was staked by each player. Parker won. After the game the men interested and several of the spectators went into the bar to take a drink. Parker had the money in his hand and while extracting a bill to pay, the roll was knocked from his grasp. He immediately had the participants arrested. A search revealed only $52 and the effort to locate the rest of the money will be continued today.

Bells are Ringing for the Evangelists

Special to The Courier.

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 7.—The bells and whistles were sounded at 10 o'clock this morning as a signal for the people to unite in prayer in behalf of the evangelistic campaign.

The meeting last night was largely attended and the services were remarkably interesting and fruitful in results. A feature was a report meeting in which the audience gave good reports of the good the meetings are doing. An engineer reported that a man on his train was converted as he blew the whistle for prayer yesterday morning. A Sunday school superintendent reported a large increase in attendance at his Sunday school. A large number told of the great impression the meetings are making in different ways about town.

Following the report service the evangelist conducted a rapid fire testimony service at which 150 testimonies were given in three minutes. The evangelist had the audience repeat the following couplet which he used as the basis for his address instead of a text of Scripture: "What kind of a church would my church be if all of its members were just like me."

The speaker gave a realistic characterization of different classes in the church, such as spongers, jerkers, kickers, shirkers and workers, and his message hit some heavy blows at the inconsistencies of church members as well as the sins of those outside of the church. A number expressed a desire to begin the Christian life.

OWES HER HEALTH

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Scottville, Mich.—"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done me. I live on a farm and have worked very hard. I am forty-five years old, and am the mother of thirteen children. Many people think it strange that I am not broken down with hard work and the care of my family, but I tell them of my good friend, your Vegetable Compound, and that there will be no backache and bearing down pains for them if they will take it as I have. I am scarcely ever without it in the house.

"I will say also that I think there is no better medicine to be found for young girls to build them up and make them strong and well. My eldest daughter has taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for painful periods and irregularity, and it has always helped her.

"I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Lydia E. Pinkham's Remedies. I tell every one I meet that I owe my health and happiness to these wonderful medicines."—Mrs. J. G. Johnson, Scottville, Mich., R.F.D. 3.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotics or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases.

Slightly used pianos are selling for less than they originally cost new at the factory.

Second-hand pianos, many of which are the same as new, sell fast at practically one-half what the same instruments regularly bring as new Chickerings, Knabes, Hardmans, Grands, Uprights and Player-pianos included.

The one big opportunity had each year to buy the world's best pianos at factory cost—plus selling expense.

The one big feature of this, as well as of all our previous Annual Clearing Sales, is the opportunity it offers in used and second hand pianos.

This year's opportunities are unusually rich, from the fact that the past season was a large one in Grands and player-pianos. Last year we sold—more than twice over—as many Grands and Player-pianos as we ever sold in any previous year. As a result—we got in scores of fine pianos which were taken in as a part payment. Dozens of these instruments are as good as new. Many of them are practically new. Many of them are products of the best makers—and as is apparent that these come from the wealthiest and most cultured homes—it can readily be seen, in a general way, what an excellent condition they are in.

Included in this sale as nearly as we can figure from the stock sheets of our 12 stores, are 30 used Grands.

25 used Player-pianos.
200 used Upright pianos.
800 second-hand pianos.

Thus affording a choice such as has never before been offered in any single piano sale.

If a purchaser is considering "quality," "actual worth" and "cheapness in price" more than he is "newness," he can pick up a bargain among these which will actually save him half his intended piano investment.

High Priced Pianos

We have each year also made it a rule to include all extremely high priced instruments in this sale—and this year is no exception. The pianos referred to are mostly Grands and player-pianos—and a small sprinkling of Uprights. These were bought to "Tone Up" our stocks. They represent the extreme of the piano maker's art. In some instances—there has never been but the one instrument of the kind made. Many are shown in Period designs, such as Louis XVI, Renaissance, First Empire, Mission, etc.

If there are those who desire something out of the ordinary in a piano, who are practically unlimited as to price, but, who are at the same time, willing that their money should go as far as it will—there are some 40 instruments included in this sale at a trifle above factory cost that are simply irresistible.

Prices and Terms

Prices during this, as well as all similar previous sales, are substantially—factory cost, with selling expense added.

In some instances even selling expense is eliminated, the instruments being marked at bare factory cost, or a very little above.

Terms during this sale are spot cash or its equivalent.

The inducement to buy is had in the low prices—not in easy terms.

We are willing, however, to extend reasonable terms, such as 6, 8, 12 or up to 18 months' time, with the understanding, of course, that interest will be charged upon all unpaid amounts at the rate of 6 per cent.

Out-of-Town Customers

During this sale, as in previous years, stock sheets are exchanged each week with all of our 12 stores, so that each and every store knows what pianos are available at each of our other stores.

We can thus furnish out-of-town buyers with authentic lists of all instruments included in the sale, a brief description and photographs of the instruments, together with prices—so that those living at points inaccessible to one of our stores can buy as intelligently as though they were selecting the pianos directly upon our floors. Write at once.

Why it Pays to Buy Advertised Goods
By Seth Brown

Because the advertiser has done something to inspire confidence.
He has not only explained the value and usefulness of his product, but has put his personality and reputation behind his statements.
He can be trusted because his very business existence is at stake.
He believes in his goods to the extent of investing his capital, not only in making the goods right, but in advertising, which will not prove permanently profitable if he fails to make good—secure repeat orders.
The advertising is not only a protection to the trade name, but it is the advertiser's guarantee of quality.
You are justified in being suspicious of unadvertised goods, because, however much confidence the dealer or manufacturer may have in them, he has not enough faith in them to spend money in telling others of their goodness.
It always pays to buy advertised goods.

King George's First Parliament Faces Acute Stage Owing to Attacks on House of Lords.

Western Maryland Will Help Baltimore

Commercial interests of Philadelphia which look a little ahead feel that with the opening, about a year from now, of the Western Maryland Railway's Pittsburg extension, Baltimore will enjoy important transportation advantages, unless in the meantime Philadelphia shall take measure to hold her own as a seaport.

Last May the Western Maryland, having come into close affiliation with the Vanderbilt system and having made a ninety-nine-year traffic contract with the Pittsburg and Lake Erie Railway, started to construct a connecting line eighty-seven miles long from Cumberland, Md., to Connellsville, Pa. This line is being built to modern standard, which means low grades and easy curves over the mountains, and is expected to cost some $'3,000,000, or about $150,000 per mile.

It will bring Baltimore thirty-two miles nearer to Pittsburg than is Philadelphia and make Cleveland thirty eight miles closer to Baltimore than it is to this city. More important than this, it will give the New York Central system direct and short line entrance from the west into Baltimore which will mean that the Maryland seaport city will enjoy the advantage of competition in transportation from three powerful railroad systems.

These are the Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio and New York Central lines. The latter will then run to Boston, New York and Baltimore. With such a situation developing, progressive commercial interests here are earnestly hoping that the Reading-New York Central systems, operating the so called Clearfield-Ashtabula freight route between Philadelphia and Chicago, can be induced not only to urge traffic over this route but to establish a through passenger train service.

Three Men Killed on S. & C. Branch

The S. & C. branch on Monday made a record by killing three men in one day, two at Hooversville and the other a brakeman, at Somerset. All three bodies were badly cut up.

The accident at Hooversville was a shocking one. The two victims, apparently foreigners in search of work and unknown to the people of the vicinity, were run down by the afternoon train which leaves Johnstown at 2 o'clock and is due at Hooversville at 2 16, the accident happening between the bridge and the little suburb known as Moyerstown.

Each victim's both legs were cut off near the ankles and each man had one arm crushed off. One man's skull was crushed over the left eye and in the back of the head, while the top of the other man' head was cut off about at the hair line on the forehead, his brains being strewed along the rails.

The third man killed was Brakeman William A. Countryman, aged 32, who was struck by an empty engine just as he stepped from the caboose of his train near Somerset, about 9.20 A. M. His body was cut up considerably. He is survived by his widow and a child. Harry A. Countryman of Somerset is a brother of the deceased.

TOLD IN PANTOMIME.

The Worth of a Chinese Royal Gift to Li Hung Chang.

The late empress dowager of China was something of a humorist. The author of "Behind the Scenes in Peking" tells a story of how Li Hung Chang, after concluding the treaty of Shimonoseki, was presented by the empress with a cloth of gold bag containing some heavy article. The treasure turned out to be a large vase, and Li, who was an enthusiastic collector of Chinese ceramics, at once sent for his secretary, Mr. Pethick, to come and examine the new acquisition.

Some time was spent in a careful examination to determine the dynasty during which this treasure was produced, but the date of this especial paste was lost, with its other technical classifications. After a long time Mr. Pethick lifted it gingerly, placed it on a table, put himself in front of it, drawing a wrap round his shoulders, and slowly, very slowly, held his hands up to it, turning them in the attitude of warming at a fire.

Chinese need few words. Li understood and was heartbroken. The pantomime indicated to him that the supposed priceless vase was only a clever reproduction made in Paris, and the secretary, warming his hands before it, meant it was so fresh from the pottery furnace that he could still notice the warmth.

FOOD AND DIGESTION.

Civilized Man Needs Cheerful Surroundings at His Meals.

Robust people so long as they get what suits their own uncultivated taste are apt to make very light of what they call "fancies" about food and overlook their real importance. Feeding on the part of civilized man is not the simple procedure which it is with animals, although many animals are particular as to their food and what is called "dainty." The necessity for civilized man of cheerful company at his meal and for the absence of mental anxiety is universally recognized, as well as the importance of an inviting appeal to the appetite through the sense of smell and of sight, while the injurious effect of the reverse conditions, which may lead to nausea and even vomiting, is admitted.

Even the ceremonial features of the dinner table, the change of clothes, the leisurely yet precise succession of approved and expected dishes, accompanied by pleasant talk and light hearted companionship, are shown by strict scientific examination to be important aids in the healthy digestion of food, which need not be large in quantity because wisely presented.—Sir Ray Lankester in London Telegraph.

A MAN OF MYSTERY.

Peculiar Life of Metastasio, the Celebrated Italian Poet.

Metastasio (1698-1782), the celebrated dramatic and operatic poet, spent fifty-five years in Vienna with the Martines family without ever learning German or wishing to learn it.

Besides his utter indifference to all speech but Italian, Metastasio possessed many peculiarities of character. None might mention death in his presence. Those who alluded to smallpox before him he made it a point not to see again. In all his fifty-five years in Vienna he never gave away more than the equivalent of $25 to the poor. He always occupied the same seat at church, but never paid for it. He took all his meals in the most mysterious privacy. His greatest friends had never seen him eat anything but a biscuit with some lemonade. Nothing would induce him to dine away from home. He never changed his wig or the cut or color of his coat.

Metastasio was to have been presented to the pope the day he died and raved about the intended interview in the delirium of his last moments. Mrs. Piozzi (familiar to readers of Boswell's "Life of Dr. Johnson" as Mrs. Thrale) collected these particulars from the ladies of the Martines family, with whom Metastasio was so long domesticated without speaking or understanding a word of their language from first to last.

ETIQUETTE IN SIAM.

On Hands and Knees Before the King Was Long the Custom There.

Perhaps the most revolutionary reform carried out by the late king of Siam was the abolition of the arbitrary rule of etiquette which forbade an inferior in rank to raise his head above that of a superior or even level with it. The inferior must not even pass over a bridge while a superior was underneath it, nor must he enter a room in an upper story while a superior was occupying a room beneath it. Servants approached their masters on hands and knees. This custom is by no means obsolete today in spite of the royal edict, for many of the powerful nobles who live far away from the court still enforce it.

In 1871 the king held a large court, at which no one present presumed to appear otherwise than on hands and knees. It was at this audience that the edict forbidding the custom was read to the prostrate multitude. They there and then rose and stood like men in the presence of their sovereign for the first time on record. Since then there has been no prostration at the royal audiences. But if a superior stops to speak to an inferior in the street the latter will still bend or lower his head in some way as a mark of respect.—London Saturday Review.

ONE WEAK SPOT.

Most Connellsville People Have a Weak Part and Too Often It's the Back.

Everyone has a weak spot.
Too often it's a bad back.
Twinges follow every sudden twist.
Dull aching keeps up, day and night.
Tells you the kidneys need help—
For backache is really kidney-ache.
A kidney cure is what you need.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.
Cure backache and urinary ills.
Good proof in the following statement.

Jacob DeWalt, 901 Mulberry street, Scottdale, Pa., says: "About seven years ago my back was injured and after that I suffered from kidney trouble. My back ached a great deal and there were severe pains in my sides and loins. At times I was stiff and lame and the kidney secretions were irregular in passage. A friend finally advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I did so. They soon helped me and continued use effected a complete cure. I am glad to tell of my experience."

Woman's Power Over Man

Woman's most glorious endowment is the power to awaken and hold the pure and honest love of a worthy man. When she loses it and still loves on, no one in the wide world can know the heart agony she endures. The woman who suffers from weakness and derangement of her special womanly organism soon loses the power to sway the heart of a man. Her general health suffers and she loses her good looks, her attractiveness, her amiability and her power and prestige as a woman. Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N.Y., with the assistance of his staff of able physicians, has prescribed for and cured many thousands of women. He has devised a successful remedy for woman's ailments. It is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a positive specific for the weaknesses and disorders peculiar to women. It purifies, regulates, strengthens and heals. Medicine dealers sell it. No honest dealer will advise you to accept a substitute in order to make a little larger profit.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

Cavanagh, Forest Ranger

The Great Conservation Novel

By HAMLIN GARLAND

Copyright, 1910, by Hamlin Garland

here beside those charred limbs called for heroic resolution. He was hungry, too, and as the air pinched he shivered.

"At the best the sheriff cannot reach here before midnight," he said, and settled down to his unsought, revolting vigil.

His one relief lay in the mental composition of a long letter to Lee Virginia, whose life at that moment was a comfort to him. "If such purity, such sweetness, can come from violence and vulgarity then surely a new and splendid state can rise even out of the ashes of these murdered men. Perhaps this is the end of the old," he mused, "perhaps this is the beginning of the new," and as he pondered the last faint crimson died out of the west. "So must the hate and violence die out of America," he said, "leaving the clear, sweet air of liberty behind."

He was near to the poet at the moment, for he was also the lover. His allegiance to the great republic stood the test. His faith in democracy was shaken, but not destroyed. "I will wait," he decided. "This shall be the sign. If this deed goes unavenged then will I put off my badge and my uniform and go back to the land where for a hundred years at least such deeds as these have been impossible."

He built a fire as night fell to serve both as a beacon and as a defense against the cold. He felt himself weirdly remote in this vigil. From his far height he looked abroad upon the tumbled plain as if upon an ocean dimly perceptible, yet august. "At this moment," he said, "curious and perhaps guilty eyes are wondering what my spark of firelight may mean."

His mind went again and again to that tall old man in the ditch. What was the meaning of his scared and sorrowful glance? Why should one so pencefully employed at such a time and in such a place wear the look of a hunted deer? What meant the tremor in his voice?

Was it possible that one so gentle should have taken part in this deed? "Preposterous suspicion, and yet he had a guilty look."

At last, far in the night, he heard the snort of a horse and the sound of voices. The law (such as it was) was creeping up the mountain side in the person of the sheriff of Chauvenet county and was about to relieve the ranger from his painful responsibility as guardian of the dead.

At last he came, this officer of the law, attended (like a Cheyenne chief) by a dozen lesser warriors of various conditions and kinds, but among them—indeed, second only to the sheriff—was Hugh Redfield, the forest supervisor, hot and eager with haste.

As they rode up to the fire the officer called out: "Howdy, ranger? How about it?"

Ross stated briefly, succinctly, what he had discovered, and as he talked other riders came up the hill and gathered closely around to listen in wordless silence—in guilty silence, the ranger could not help believing.

Redfield spoke. "Sheriff Van Horne, you and I have been running cattle in this country for nearly thirty years, and we've witnessed all kinds of shooting and several kinds of hanging, but when it comes to chopping and burning men I get off. I shall personally offer a reward of $1,000 for the apprehension of these miscreants, and I hope you'll make it your solemn duty to hunt them to earth."

"You won't have far to go," remarked Ross significantly.

"What do you mean?" asked the sheriff.

"I mean this slaughter, like the others that have taken place, was the work of cattlemen who claim this range. Their names are known to us all."

A silence followed—so deep a silence that the ranger was convinced of the fact that in the circle of his listeners stood those who, if they had not shared in the slaughter, at least knew the names of the guilty men.

At last the sheriff spoke, this time with a sigh. "I hope you're all wrong, Cavanagh. I'd hate to think any constituent of mine had sanctioned this job. Give me that lantern, Curtis."

The group of ranchers dismounted and followed the sheriff over to the grewsome spot, but Redfield stayed with the ranger.

"Have you any suspicion, Ross?"

"No, hardly a suspicion. However, you know as well as I that this was not a sudden outbreak. This deed was planned. It represents the feeling of many cattlemen—in everything but the extra horror of its execution. That was the work of drunken, infuriated men. But I am more deeply concerned over Miss Wetherford's distress. Did she reach you by telephone tonight?"

"No. What's the trouble?"

"Her mother is down again. I telephoned her, and she asked me to come to her, but I cannot go, for I have a case of smallpox up on the hill. Ambro, the Basque herder, is down with it, and another herder is up there alone with him. I must go back to them. But meanwhile I wish you would go to the Fork and see what you can do for her."

His voice, filled with emotion, touched Redfield, and he said, "Can't I go to the relief of the herder?"

"No; you must not think of it. You are a man with a family. But if you can find any one who has had the smallpox send him up. The old herder who is nursing the patient is not strong and may drop at any moment." Then it's up to me."

The men came back to the campfire conversing in low tones, some of them cursing in tones of awe. One or two of them were small farmers from Deer Creek, recent comers to the state, or men with bunches of milk cows, and to them this deed was awesome.

The sheriff followed, saying: "Well, there's nothing to do but wait till morning. The rest of you men better go home. You can't be of any use here."

For more than three hours the sheriff and Redfield sat with the ranger, waiting for daylight, and during this time the name of every man in the region was brought up and discussed. Among others, Ross mentioned the old man in the ditch.

"He wouldn't hurt a bumblebee," declared the sheriff. "He's got a bunch of cattle, but he's the mildest old man in the state. He's the last rancher in the country to even stand for such work. What made you mention him?"

"I passed him as I was riding back," replied Cavanagh, "and he had a scared look in his eyes."

The sheriff grunted. "You imagined all that. The old chap always has a kind of meek look."

It was nearly noon of a glorious day as Cavanagh, very tired and very hungry, rode up to the sheep herder's tent. Wetherford was sitting in the sun calmly smoking his pipe, the sheep were feeding not far away, attended by the dog, and an air of peace covered his sunlit rocky world.

"How is the Basque?" asked the ranger.

Wetherford pointed upward. "All over."

"Then it wasn't smallpox?"

"I reckon that's what it was; it sure was fierce. I judge it's a case of Injun burial—no ceremony—right here in the rocks. I'll let you dig the hole (I'm just about all in), but mind you keep to the windward all the time. I don't want you spotted."

Cavanagh understood the necessity for these precautions, but first of all came his own need of food and rest. Turning his tired horse to grass, he stretched himself along a grassy, sunny clumny between the rocks and there ate and afterward slept, while all about him the lambs called and the conies whined.

He was awakened by a pebble tossed upon him, and when he arose, stiff and sore, but feeling stronger and in better temper, the sun was wearing low. Setting to work at his task, he threw the loose rock out of a hollow in the ledge near by, and to this rude sepulcher Wetherford dragged the dead man, refusing all aid, and there piled a cairn of rocks above his grave.

The ranger took a hand at the end and rolled some huge bowlders upon the grave to insure the wolves' defeat.

"Now burn the bedding," he commanded. "The whole camp has got to go, and your clothing, too, after we get down the hill."

"What will we do with the sheep?"

"Drive them over the divide and leave them."

All these things Wetherford did, and, leaving the camp in ashes behind him, Cavanagh drove the sheep before him on his homeward way. As night fell the dog, at his command, rounded them up and put them to bed, and the men went on down the valley, leaving the brave brute on guard, pathetic figure of faithful guardianship.

"It hurts me to desert you, old fellow," called the ranger, looking back, "but there's no help for it. I'll come up in the morning and bring you some biscuit."

It was long after dark when they entered the canyon just above the cabin, and Wetherford was shivering from cold and weakness.

"Now, you pull up just outside the gate and wait there till I bring out some blankets. Then you've got to strip to the skin and start the world all over again," said Cavanagh. "I'll build a fire here, and we'll cremate your past. How about it?"

"ALL OVER."

"I'm willing," responded Wetherford. "You can burn everything that belongs to me but my wife and my girl."

All through the ceremony which followed ran this self banter. "I'll be all ranger, barring a commission," he said, with a grin as he put on the olive yellow shirt and a pair of dusty green trousers. "And here goes my past!" he added as he tossed his contaminated rags upon the fire.

"What a corking opportunity to make a fresh start," commented Cavanagh. "I hope you see it."

"I see it, but it's hard to live up to your mark."

When every precaution had been taken the ranger led the freshly scrubbed, scoured and transformed fugitive to his cabin.

"Why, man, you're fit for the state legislature," he exclaimed as they came into the full light. "My clothes don't precisely meet every demand you make upon them, but they give you an air of command. I wish your wife could see you now." Then, seeing that Wetherford was really in earnest, he added: "You can stay with me as long as you wish. Perhaps in time you might be able to work into the service as a guard, although the chief is getting more and more insistent on real foresters."

There were tears in Wetherford's eyes as he said: "You cannot realize what this clean, warm uniform means to me. For nine years I wore the prison stripes. It is ten years since I was dressed like a man."

"You need not worry about food or shelter for the present," replied Cavanagh gently. "Grub is not costly here, and house rent is less than nominal, so make yourself at home and get strong."

Wetherford lifted his head. "But I want to do something. I want to redeem myself in some way. I don't want my girl to know who I am, but I'd like to win her respect. I can't be what you say she thinks I was, but if I had a chance I might show myself a man again. I wouldn't mind Lize knowing that I am alive. It might be a comfort to her. But I don't want even her to be told till I can go to her in my own duds."

"She's pretty sick," said Cavanagh. "I telephoned Lee Virginia last night, and if you wish you may ride down with me tomorrow and see her."

The old man fell a-tremble. "I daren't do that. I can't bear to tell her where I've been."

"She needn't know. I will tell her you've been out of your mind. I'll say anything you wish. You can go to her in the clothes you have on if you like. She will not recognize you as the prisoner I held the other night. You can have your beard trimmed, and not even the justice will know you."

All reserve had vanished out of the convict's heart, and with choking voice he thanked his young host. "I'll never be a burden to you," he declared in a firmer voice. "And if my lung holds out I'll show you I'm not the total loco that I 'pear to be."

CHAPTER XVI.

CAVANAGH FOLLOWS HIS CHIEF.

At breakfast next morning Cavanagh said: "I must ride back and take some bread to the dog. I can't go away and leave him there without saying hello."

"Let me do that," suggested Wetherford. "I'm afraid to go down to the Fork. I reckon I'd better go back and tend the sheep till Gregg sends some one up to take my place."

"That might be too late to see Lize. Lee's voice showed great anxiety. She may be on her deathbed. No; you'd better go down with me today," he urged. And at last the old man consented.

Putting some bread in his pockets, Ross rode off up the trail to see how the dog and his flock were faring. He had not gone far when he heard the tinkle of the bells and the murmur of the lambs, and a few moments later the collie came toward him with the air of a boy who, having assumed to disregard the orders of his master, expects a scolding. He plainly said: "I've brought my sheep to you because I was lonesome. Please forgive me."

Cavanagh called to him cheerily and tossed him a piece of bread, which he caught in his teeth, but did not swallow. On the contrary, he held it while leaping for joy of the praise he heard in his new found master's voice.

Turning the flock upward toward the higher peaks, the ranger commanded the collie to their heels and so, having redeemed his promise, rode back to the cabin, where he found Wetherford saddled and ready for his momentous trip to the valley. He had shaved away his gray beard, and had Ross been unprepared for these changes he would have been puzzled to account for this decidedly military figure sitting statuesquely on his pony before the door.

"You can prove an alibi," he called as he drew near. "Gregg himself would never recognize you now."

Wetherford was in no mood for joking. "Lize will. I wore a mustache in the old days, and there's a scar on my chin."

As he rode he confided this strange thing to Cavanagh. "I know," said he, "that Lize is old and wrinkled, for I've seen her, but all the same I can't realize it. That heavy set woman down there is not Lize. My Lize is slim and straight. This woman whom you know has stolen her name and face, that's all. I can't explain exactly what I feel, but Lee Virginia means more to me now than Lize."

"I think I understand you," said Cavanagh, with sympathy in his voice.

The nearer Wetherford came to the actual meeting with his wife the more he shook. At last he stopped in the road. "I don't believe I can do it," he declared. "I'll be like a ghost to her. What's the use of it? She'll only be worried by my story. I reckon I'd better keep dark to everybody. Let me go back. I'm plum scared cold."

While still he argued two men on horseback rounded a sharp turn in the trail and came face to face with the ranger. Wetherford's face went suddenly gray. "There's the deputy!"

"Keep quiet. I'll do the talking," commanded Cavanagh, who was insistant in his determination to shield the man. "Good morning, gentlemen," he called cheerily. "You're abroad early!"

The man in front was the deputy sheriff of the county; his companion was a stranger.

"That was a horrible mess you stumbled on over on Deer creek," the deputy remarked.

"It certainly was. Have any arrests been made?"

"Not yet, but we're on a clew. This is Marshal Haines of Dallas, Mr. Cavanagh," pursued the deputy. The two men nodded in token of the introduction, and the deputy went on, "You remember that old cuss that used to work for Gregg?"

Again Cavanagh nodded.

"Well, that chap is wanted by the Texas authorities. Mr. Haines here wants to see him mighty bad. He's an escaped convict with a bad record."

"Is that so?" exclaimed Cavanagh. "I thought he seemed a bit gun shy."

"The last seen of him was when Sam Gregg sent him up to herd sheep. I think he was mixed up in that killing myself—him and Ballard—and we're going up to get some track of him. Didn't turn up at your station, did he?"

"Yes; he came by some days ago, on his way, so he said, to relieve that sick Basque, Ambro. I went up a couple of days ago and found the Basque dead and the old man gone. I buried the herder the best I could, and I'm on my way down to report the case."

The deputy mused: "He may be hanging round some of the lumber camps. I reckon we had better go up and look the ground over anyhow. We might just chance to overhaul him."

"He may have pulled out over the range," suggested the ranger. "Anyhow, it's a long way up there, and you'll probably have to camp at my place tonight. You'll find the key hanging over the door. Go in and make yourself comfortable."

The deputy thanked him and was about to ride on when Cavanagh added: "I burned that Basque's tent and bedding for fear of contagion. His outfit was worthless anyhow. You'll find the sheep just above my cabin and the horse in my corral."

"The old man didn't take the horse, eh? Well, that settles it; he's sure at one of the camps. Much obliged. Good day."

As the two officers rode away Wetherford leaned heavily on his pommel and stared at the ranger with wide eyes. His face was drawn and his lips dry. "They'll get me! They'll get me!" he said.

"Oh, no, they won't," rejoined Cavanagh. "You're all right yet. They suspect nothing. How could they, with you in uniform and in my company?"

"All the same, I'm scared. That man Haines had his eyes on me every minute. He saw right through me. They'll get me, and they'll charge me up with that killing."

"No, they won't, I tell you," insisted the ranger. "Haines suspected nothing. I had his eye. He never saw you before and has nothing but a description to go by, so cheer up. Your uniform and your position with me will make you safe—perfectly safe. They'll find the Basque's camp burned and the sheep in charge of the dog, and they'll fancy that you have skipped across the range. But see here, old man," and he turned on him sharply, "you didn't tell me the whole truth. You said you were out on parole."

"I couldn't tell you the whole truth," replied the fugitive. "But I will now. I was in for a life sentence. I was desperate for the open air and homesick for the mountains, and I struck down one of the guards. I was willing to do anything to get out. I thought if I could get back to this country and my wife and child I'd be safe. I said I'd be willing to go back to the pen if necessary, but I'm not. I can't do it. I'd die there. You must save me for my girl's sake."

His voice and eyes were wild with a kind of desperate fury of fear, and Cavanagh, moved to pity, assured him of his aid. "Now, listen," he said. "I'm going to shield you on account of your work for that poor shepherd and for your daughter's sake. It's my duty to apprehend you, of course, but I'm going to protect you. The safest thing for you to do is to go back to my cabin. Ride slow, so as not to get there till they're gone. They'll ride over to the sawmill without doubt. If they come back this way remember that the deputy saw you only as a ragged old man with a long beard and that Haines has nothing but a printed description to go by. There's no use trying to flee. You are a marked man in that uniform, and you are safer right here with me than anywhere else this side of Chicago. Haines is likely to cross the divide in the belief that you have gone that way, and if he does you have no one but the deputy to deal with."

He succeeded at last in completely rousing the older man's courage.

Wetherford rose to meet his opportunity. "I'll do it," he said firmly.

"That's the talk!" exclaimed Cavanagh to encourage him. "You can throw them off the track this time, and when I come back tomorrow I'll bring some other clothing for you, and then we'll plan some kind of scheme that will get you out of the country. I'll not let them make a scapegoat of you."

The ranger watched the fugitive as he started back over the trail in this desperate defiance of his pursuers with far less confidence in the outcome than he had put into words.

"All depends on Wetherford himself. If his nerve does not fail him, if they take the uniform for granted and do not carry the matter to the supervisor, we will pull the plan through." And in this hope he rode away down the trail with bent head, for all this bore heavily upon his relationship to the girl waiting for him in the valley. He had thought Lize a burden, a social disability, but a convict father now made the mother's faults of small account.

The nearer he drew to the meeting with Lee Virginia the more important that meeting became. Cavanagh had seen Virginia hardly more than a score of times, and yet she filled his thought, confused his plans, making of his brain a place of doubt and hesitation. For her sake he had entered upon a plan to shield a criminal, to harbor an escaped convict. It was of no avail to argue that he was moved to shield Wetherford because of his heroic action on the peak. He knew perfectly well that it was because he could not see that fair, brave girl further disgraced by the discovery of her father's identity, for in the searching inquiry which would surely follow his secret would develop.

To marry her, knowing the character of her father and her mother, was madness, and the voice within him warned him of his folly. "Pure water cannot be drawn from corrupt sources," it is said. Nevertheless the thought of having the girl with him in the wilderness filled him with divine recklessness. While still he debated, alternately flushed with resolve to be happy and chilled by some strange dejection, he met Swenson, the young guard who guarded the forest on the South Fork.

As he rode up Cavanagh perceived in the other man's face something profoundly serious. He did not smile in greeting, as was usual with him, and, taking some letters from his pocket, passed them over in ominous silence. He had a face of such bitterness that it broke through even the absorbed and selfish meditation into which Cavanagh had been thrown.

"What's the matter, Swenson? You look as if you had lost a friend."

"I have," answered the guard shortly, "and so have you. The chief is out."

"What?"

"They've got him!" he exclaimed. "He's out."

Cavanagh sprang up. "I don't believe it! For what reason? Why?"

"Don't that letter tell you? The whole town is chuckling. Every criminal and plug ugly in the country is spitting in our faces this morning. Yes, sir, the president has fired the chief—the man that built up this forestry service. The whole works is going to h—, that's what it is. We'll have all the coal thieves, water power thieves, poachers and free grass pirates piling in on us in mobs. They'll eat up the forest. I see the finish of the whole business. They'll put some western man in—somebody they can work. Then where will we be?"

Cavanagh's young heart burned with indignation, but he tried to check the other man's torrent of protest.

"I can't believe it. There's some mistake. Maybe they've made him the secretary of the department or something."

"No, they haven't. They've thrown him out. They've downed him because he tried to head off some thievery of coal mines in Alaska." The man was ready to weep with chagrin and indignant sorrow. His voice choked, and he turned away to conceal his emotion.

Cavanagh put the letter back into his pocket and mounted his horse. "Well, go on back to your work, Swenson. I'm going to town to get the supervisor on the wire and find out what it all means."

He was almost as badly stunned by the significance of Swenson's news as Swenson himself. Could it be possible that the man who had built up the field service of the bureau—the man whose clean handed patriotism had held the boys together, making them every year more clearly a unit, a little army of enthusiasts—could it be possible that the originator, the organizer of this great plan, had been stricken down just when his influence was of most account? He refused to believe it of an administration pledged to the cause of conservation.

As he entered the town he was struck instantly by the change in the faces turned toward him, in the jocular greetings hurled at him. "Hello, Mr. Cossack! What do you think of your chief now?"

His Blunt Critic.

Irving Bacheller was introduced one day by a mutual friend to a western mountaineer.

"Mr. Bacheller," exclaimed the friend to the mountaineer, "is an author of repute in the east."

"Oh, yes," drawled the mountaineer. "I know of him. I was locked up in my cabin here by the snow two winters ago, and I only had two books to read the whole five months, your book, sir," he said, turning to Mr. Bacheller, "and the Bible, and I read them through several times."

"Indeed!" said the author, a smile of satisfaction wreathing his face.

"Yes, sir," continued the old mountaineer, "and I never knew before how interesting the Bible was."—St. Paul Dispatch.

THE STAGE AND THE PLAYERS.

THE SOISSON.

Viola Allen in "The White Sister."

Viola Allen who comes to the Soisson theatre tonight, in her latest play, "The White Sister," stepped directly from the schoolroom to the stage, and not to a small part either. She went at once to the position of leading woman for the late tragedian, John McCullough, and with him for two seasons played in such old plays as "Virginius," "The Gladiator," "Othello" and "Richard III." In all since that time Miss Allen has played in more than one hundred vehicles, and her repertoire will compare favorably with that of any other woman of twice her years upon the stage. For some years she was leading woman at the famous Empire Stock Company in New York, and only left there to assume the robe of stardom in Hall Caine's play, "The Christian." Since that time Miss Allen has occupied a unique position in American theatricals, having for several years managed her own tours each season, and only during the last three years returned to her former managers, Liebler & Company who are directing the present tour.

"Ursula Gibson Girls."

At the Soisson theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday in up to date musical comedy successes, mingled with clever vaudeville, and the latest moving pictures. Matinee at 2.30; evenings at 7.30 and 9 o'clock. Prices 5, 10 and 20 cents.

"Moulin Rouge Girls."

Of the numerous companies playing burlesque on the road, the Moulin Rouge Girls have the approval of the burlesque-loving public everywhere, and for this season they are presenting an entire change of program, new burlettas, new and pretty musical numbers; many of them written for this company by that famous and popular song writer, Bernard Toy. The company numbers 25 people, mostly pretty girls for which this company is noted, assisted by half a dozen famous funny fellows. "Dolly's Debut" and "The Jolly Widows" are the titles of the burlettas, and the laughs come at a mile a minute rate throughout both of them from the rise of the curtain till the fall. Many new features are introduced during the action of both pieces. Comes to the Soisson theatre Monday, Feb. 13. Seats on sale Friday morning.

Observing Ridger Startles Trolley Car

At Dunbar the couple got on. They were middle aged and typical Ridgers. She could have taken on a big consignment of good looks without feeling the burden, and he had never been groomed to enter a beauty contest.

They took a seat about the middle of the car and proceeded to take an inventory of their fellow passengers. Two seats ahead of them, on the opposite side, sat a lady wearing a seal skin coat. There was nothing particularly striking about her, except her ears, and they were certainly entitled to a second look. They were unusually large and had a sort of pathetic droop. Our Ridger friend finally espied the lady and after a long scrutiny turned to his companion with a whimsical look on his face.

This particular car was a noisy one; there was no getting away from that. Some of the mechanism seemed to be loose and a flat wheel added to the general disturbance. In addition it was a little behind time and the motorman was using all the "juice" available.

Conversation under the circumstance was almost impossible and could be carried on only by the exercise of an enormous amount of lung power. The Ridger evidently had a good supply and was using it, for just as the car shot over a passing siding switch and stopped as though the wheels had dropped off, and everything became suddenly still, the passengers were thrown into a panic by hearing him shout, his mouth close to his companion's ear:

"Say, Mag, look at that woman across the way—she's got ears just like our old sow."

A Moving Sermon.

"I once had a parishioner who was a miser," said an English clergyman. "For this man's benefit I preached one Sunday a strong sermon on the necessity of charity, of philanthropy—a sermon on the duty and the joy of giving. The miser, at whom I gazed often, seemed impressed.

"Next day I met him on the street.

"'Well, John,' I said, 'what do you think of yesterday's sermon?'

"'It moved me deeply, sir,' he answered. 'It brought home to me so strongly the necessity of giving alms that honestly, sir, I've a great mind to turn beggar.'"

The Tiny Shoes She Wanted.

"Now, madam, what size shoe will you have?" asked the salesman as soon as he was at liberty.

"The smallest and shiniest you have," she said.

The other women buying shoes sniffed.

And when the clerk returned with a pair of the tiniest imaginable the woman accepted them with the remark, "I guess baby's eyes will open when she sees these on her feet."—Buffalo Express.

Rheumatism in Ankles.

One Bottle of Rheuma Cured Woman Who Could Not Walk.

Marvelous as this story may seem, it is absolutely true; but this is only one of the many almost magical cures that Rheuma is performing these days.

Mrs. Gertrude Kozel, Smithfield, Pa., writes on Feb. 14, 1910: "I had Rheumatism for over a year; it settled in my ankles and I could not walk. I have taken one bottle of Rheuma and do not have any more pain, and I can again walk at will."

A. A. Clark will sell any reader of The Courier a bottle of Rheuma for 50 cents, and guarantees it to cure any case of any kind of Rheumatism or money back.

Gratifying relief comes in a day, because Rheuma acts at one time on the Kidneys, Stomach, Liver and Blood, and starts to rid the entire system of poisonous Uric Acid at once.

Games Tonight.
Connellsville at South Side.

There was no game at Homestead last night so the Cokers won by forfeit. The Young Americans desired to be shown regarding their delinquent salaries but there was nothing doing.

The Cokers were on the floor ready to play the contest but there was nothing doing. The scorer hung up the 2-0 sign for Dark's men, doused the glims and locked the door to the hall. There was no audience as the Young Americans gave early notice they would not play.

South Side was defeated at Johnstown last night 47 to 19. Fogarty's men have Hough's number and get away with more than an even break of the games. If South Side fails to land that pennant Johnstown will be largely to blame. Johnstown fans will feel real cheerful over helping McKeesport win a pennant—not.

Homestead Out of Central League

Club owners in the Central Basketball league met last night at V. P. Frantz, Fifth and Carson streets, Pittsburg, and decided to take over the Homestead franchise.

The Homestead players have money coming to them as wages, and at a meeting called for last night in Homestead the directors failed to appear for the hearing. The players, however, were given judgment.

The league at its meeting decided that as the championship season would not last much longer, it would be better to drop Homestead and go through the season with but five clubs. Homestead was to play on the South Side tonight, but Connellsville will be substituted.

The league adopted a new schedule for the rest of the season. The only change in the week' program is that Connellsville will play on the South Side tonight and tomorrow McKeesport will go to Johnstown. The other dates are:

February 13—Connellsville at McKeesport, South Side at Johnstown.
February 14—McKeesport at Connellsville, Johnstown at Uniontown.
February 15—Connellsville at Johnstown, Uniontown at South Side.

PILES BRING DESPAIR

Take Courage! Internal Treatment Will Cure.

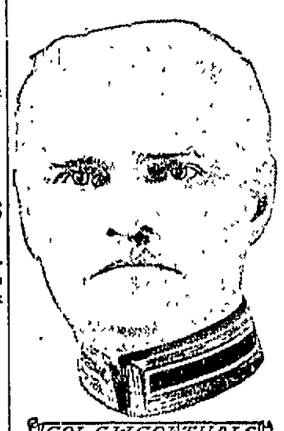

Piles make life unhappy and ruin the best disposition. Most sufferers have been bitterly disappointed by many failures to find a cure. A medicine in tablet form, taken internally, that avoids the unpleasant features of ointments, suppositories and operations, and cures thoroughly by removing the inside cause, is surely worth trying, especially as A. A. Clarke guarantees it.

Grand Jury Clears Miss Bush.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 8.—(Special.)—Miss Ida Bush, the telephone operator, whose experiences with Railroad Detective W. P. Smith of Monongahela made much gossip for the valley town, was acquitted, so far as the grand jury can acquit, of the charge of assault and battery in shooting Smith one night last fall. Smith was held by the grand jury, having a true bill found against him on the charge of assault and battery.

GOETHALS COMES TO URGE CANAL FORTIFICATION.

COL. G. W. GOETHALS
IN CHARGE OF CANAL WORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Colonel Geo. W. Goethels, chief engineer of the Panama canal, who has arrived here from Panama in response to a cable message from the Secretary of War, said that his visit to the capital is for the purpose of reporting to the appropriations committee regarding the fortifications of the canal. "Now that we have spent so much money on the canal there is only one thing to do, and that is to fortify it," said the colonel. "It would be a mistake to leave it unprotected, and it would also be a mistake to use the navy to defend it. In time of war the navy is supposed to take the aggressive and seek out the enemy and destroy it as soon as possible, and the use of the navy for defending territory that can well be defended by land fortifications would be wrong. We should build batteries along the seacoast and provide sufficient means for defense of the locks, so that any land force could be prevented from harming them.

ONLY PRACTICE BUT GIRLS STAR.

First Team Gives Second Quintet Bad Beating at the Armory.

THE SCORE WAS 15 TO 3

All the Way to Seven Field Goals Made by the Regulars to Only One By the Volunteers—Four Spectators in Uniform.

The regulars and the volunteers clashed in the State Armory last night and the regulars winning 15 to 3. The all star feminine basketball quintet of the Connellsville High School picked the reserves for slaughter—and did a good job of it. Those volunteers are game youngsters and it was principally because they were outweighed and not outgamed that they lost.

All in all it was the best game the girls have yet played. They never will play a real good game on the Armory floor—it is too large and too slippery. That some of the girls have not been painfully hurt is a wonder. They slide around with reckless abandon, collided with each other, the spectators and the steam radiators, yet always come up smiling when the whistle blows. Because of the great size of the playing floor the play usually centers itself at one end of the hall or the other. Then the forwards who aren't in it have pleasant conversation with their guards until someone accidentally sends the ball in their direction.

The game was funny. Likewise it was exciting at times. It was a sliding match from start to finish but the regulars were never in danger. In the first half the volunteers made but one point—little Margaret Morton placing one of her three foul shots accurately. In the second half they garnered two more points when Miss Dorothy Russell scored a field goal, quite a neat toss, by the way.

Mary Thomas and Julia Zimmerman were the scoring stars for the regulars and if there is a better pair of forwards among the girls of this vicinity they haven't been in evidence. Each made three field goals. On the free line Miss Thomas was slightly unnerved, possibly because she slipped so often, and landed but one out of six tries, the same record of her opposing tosser, Miss Margaret Morton. The other two points for the regulars were made by a neat goal by Edith Morton.

It was a strenuous game. The first half was the regulation 20 minutes. Those girls have grit. When they can slide and slip over a floor like that for 20 minutes, and play the game all the time, they ought to have no trouble going the full distance on a regulation floor with good footing. The second half was cut short. The lineup:

Regulars—15.	Volunteers—3.
Julia Zimmerman	Margaret Morton
Forward
Mary Thomas	Elizabeth Gomas
Forward
Edith Morton	Dorothy Russell
Center
Margaret Donnelly	Reine Soisson
Guard
Isabel Connelly	Pearl Buttermore
Guard

Field goals—Zimmerman 3, Thomas 3, Morton, Russell.
Foul goals—Thomas 1 out of 6; Morton 1 out of 6, Buttermore missed one.
Referee—Morton.

Notes of the Game.

Mary Thomas can fall offenor and easier than any girl on either team. Her injuries never appeared serious.

If any of them have anything on Isabel Connelly for dribbling they failed to show it.

The girls missed "Plugger" Doherty, the sweet singer of the Cokers. They just dote on "Plugger" as a referee.

Bob Morton had to handle the whistle. Rube Herwick balked.

It was Slide, Kelly! Slide! throughout the evening. The Y. M. C. A. gym is just about the right size for the girls.

When the All-American selection is made it's a safe bet Julia Zimmerman will be picked for a forward.

Besides a girls' game the city league contests are tame.

Connelly roughed it up when Russell got the ball from her during the second half.

When it comes to tenacity and lack of fear about mixing things up, Isabel Connelly and Elizabeth Gomas have them all nailed to the mast.

High School prognosticators predict Reine Soisson will have no trouble making the big team next year. She is showing considerable promise.

Dorothy Russell jumped a good game at center against Edith Morton. She held her own in the scoring, getting the only basket that came to the scrubs.

That is an athletic Morton family. Bob captains Company D, Miss Edith jumps center for the girls and Miss Margaret is making good headway as a forward on the scrubs.

Miss Zimmerman is irrepressible. With a girl taking a ride on her back she sent the ball through the sub way and a field goal would have resulted but for the foul that was called.

Guernsey Earthenware
The Modern Cooking Utensil

Guernsey Cooking and serving utensils are made in the highest grade of earthenware, being the most practical dish you can have in your kitchen. There is not a meal prepared in which this ware will not prove surprisingly helpful in producing more appetizing and wholesome dishes.

The body of Guernsey Earthenware is as near fire-proof in construction as such can be made. The exterior appearance is a rich brown with a spotless white porcelain interior, providing an absolute sanitary and acid proof utensil.

These pieces are practically indestructible when used with ordinary care.

The clay used is a non-conductor and the warmth of the food is assured after removing the dish from oven to table.

Food may be left in Guernsey utensils indefinitely without danger of absorption of dangerous poisons. The acid formed by contact with tin and all metal cooking articles often result in serious illness or death.
